HISTORY

When Mr. Jewell founded George L. Jewell Catering Services in 1967, he had already honed his exuberant and innovative style through years of experience in traditional dining service.

Working first out of a small florist shop off Belmont Street in Chicago, Mr. Jewell began serving afternoon tea sandwiches to his clients who would come to the shop to discuss their orders. The first event he ever “catered” was a tray of hors d’oeuvres he prepared and delivered himself.

From that first hors d’oeuvre tray grew a multi-million dollar company, now operating out of a 40,000 square foot facility with a fleet of vehicles and enough warehoused equipment to serve a formal sit down dinner for over 2,000 people.

After almost 50 years in the industry, George Jewell still engages in his hands-on management style and continues as the spokesman of the company. His impassioned enthusiasm for special events and his dedication to excellence set the tone for the entire company.
